REPORT TO THE COLORADO GENERAL ASSEMBLY:

THE EXECUTIVE AND LEGISLATIVE BRANCHES
OF COLORADO STATE GOVERNMENT: FUNCTIONS,
FUNDINGS, AND FULL-TIME EMPLOYEES

COLORADO LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL
RESEARCH PUBLICATION NO. 285
March 30, 1984

March 30, 1984

To Members of the Fifty-fourth Colorado General Assembly:

House Joint Resolution No. 1016, adopted during the 1981 session of the General Assembly, directed the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President of the Senate to appoint a special committee for the purpose of compiling a list of "all functions performed by state government in Colorado, determine the statutory or other authorization for such functions, and determine the costs of these functions". The resolution provided for eleven members, six members from the House of Representatives, to be appointed by the Speaker, and five members from the Senate, to be appointed by the President. The resolution also specified that the committee elect its own chairman and vice-chairman.

The following members of the General Assembly were appointed to the committee known as the Legislative Program Priority Committee:

Senator Regis Groff	Representative Bill Artist
Senator Don MacManus	Representative Don Mielke
Senator Dan Noble	Representative Frank Randall
Senator Dan Schaefer	Representative Jim Robb
Senator Ruth Stockton	Representative David Skaggs
	Representative Wilma Webb

Senator Dan Schaefer was elected chairman for the first year of the study with Representative Robb serving as vice-chairman. For the second year Representative Robb was chairman and Senator Schaefer was vice-chairman.

During the summer and fall of 1981, the committee developed a format to be followed by the departments of the executive branch as they assisted the committee staff in compiling information for the study. A format for the report was also determined. The committee envisioned a detailed guide or handbook of the functions performed by the executive branch of state government for use by legislators, executive agency personnel, local officials, and other citizens. It was hoped that the study would assist the General Assembly in identifying the following: programs not authorized by statute; programs authorized by statute but not funded; and duplications between programs administered by state agencies and other governmental entities.

The committee decided that the handbook should be divided into two sections, the first section to contain a listing of functions organized by department. A second section would be devoted to organization charts and budget data for each of the twenty departments within the executive branch. A general index would give access to the entire document.

During the month of December, 1981, the committee sent a letter to each of the executive department directors asking for their assistance in compiling information needed for the handbook. The directors were asked to submit the information to the committee by April, 1982.

By late fall of 1982 it became clear that not all of the departments were able to comply in a timely manner with the committee's request. As a result, a preliminary report was published in January, 1983. Submissions from the five remaining departments were made during 1983. The committee was not reestablished in 1983; instead, the Legislative Council staff assumed responsibility for completing the report.

I want to express my appreciation to the twenty departments for their information and assistance. In several cases, hundreds of hours were spent by department personnel on the committee's assignment. Special recognition for careful and timely compliance is given to the following departments: Agriculture, Education, Highways, Natural Resources, and Revenue. Appreciation is also expressed to the Department of Administration for assistance in developing a format for the handbook.

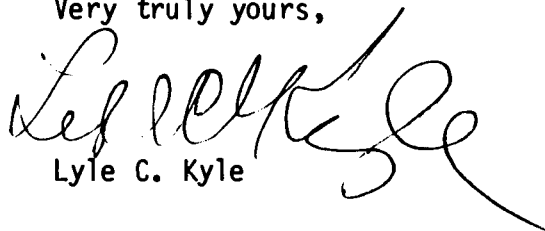

The detailed listing of functions performed by the executive and legislative branches of Colorado state government together with a determination of the costs of those functions and an identification of their statutory authorization has not been accomplished in recent memory. It has been a very large task. There may be inadvertent errors and omissions in the accompanying report. The executive departments or agencies within the legislative branch did not comply uniformly. I regret that the judicial branch is not included in this report. Experience may show that a better format could have been devised. I share the committee's desire, however, that the handbook be a first step in assisting those wanting to know more about Colorado state government.

Very truly yours,

FOREWORD

In seeking a greater understanding of the activities of the executive branch of Colorado state government, the Committee on Legislative Program Priority asked the directors of each of the twenty executive departments to list the functions assigned to or performed by their agencies as well as identify the state statute, federal law, rule or regulation, administrative decree, or executive order authorizing the activity. After receiving the lists of functions from the departments (usually arranged according to organizational unit), the committee staff grouped the duties within broad functional categories.

With regards to the department's organizational charts, with a few exceptions, a detailed picture of each department's structure was provided by the departments. The following is a legend to the symbols used in drawing the department organization charts.

The designations conform to the organizational terminology found in the state statutes. The Administrative Organization Act of 1968 prescribes the general organizational terminology and structure of the executive branch by directing that powers, duties, and functions of the principal departments be allocated to divisions, sections, and units within the departments. Although the statutes do not define "division", "section", "unit", or "staff", these terms are generally recognized as representing a hierarchy of organizational entities with "division" being the highest or broadest organizational entity within a department. Divisions are made up of sections, units and staff agencies. All departments and most divisions are named in the statute; specific sections, units and staff agencies within the principal departments are not generally identified in the law. Divisions are made up of sections and sections usually contain a number of units. A unit is the smallest or lowest organizational entity within a department. A staff function often assists a department or division director.

Under most of the organizational boxes drawn for the major organizational units within a department, the reader will find a number and an "a", "b" or "c" alphabetical designation. The numerical designation identifies the functions (listed in the pages preceding the charts) performed by the organizational entity. The "a" "b" "c" alphabetical designations describe the approximate contribution that the agency makes to carrying out the function preceding the letter designation.

a = 75 to 100% contribution
b = 25 to 75% contribution
c = 5 to 25% contribution

The heads or directors of each division within a department are assumed to bear the responsibility for a part of each of their divisions functions. Therefore, unless the division director personally assumes nearly all of the responsibility for a given function to the exclusion of significant staff contributions, no notation of the function number is made under the organizational symbol for the division director's office.

FTE figures for each agency and funding sources for each agency are also delineated. They represent figures for the fiscal year 1982. Dollar figures are in thousands. Funding sources are indicated by the following designations:

C = cash funding
F = federal funding
G = general funding
HUTF = highway users tax fund

An illustration of how the symbols explained in the preceding paragraphs have been used in the report may be helpful to the reader. One of the first principal departments found in the report is the Department of Agriculture. Pages AG-1 through AG-9 provide a listing of the major duties performed by the department. The duties are listed under major headings. The headings describe the general activities performed by the department. Pages AG-10 through AG-18 detail the organization chart for the department. Page AG-10 provides an overview of the department, showing divisions, sections and units. In the top left hand corner of AG-10 are the funding totals for the department for FY 1981-82: $5,823,000 from the state's general fund, $5,543,000 from cash funds and $104,000 from federal sources. The pages following AG-10 detail the internal structures of each of the organizational entities found on AG-10. For example, the organization box at the top of the chart on page AG-10 -- identified as Executive Director -- is detailed further on AG-11.

The pattern described above is repeated for each of the departments contained in the report.
