Tribal College Journal (ISSN 1052-5505) is a quarterly publication of the American Indian Higher Education Consortium, an organization of 35 Indian-controlled colleges in the United States and Canada. It is published with assistance from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation and the American Indian College Fund. Culture-based publication which addresses subjects important to the future of American Indian and Alaska Native communities utilizing both journalistic and scholarly articles.

Tribal Colleges & Universities (TCUs)

TCUs were created in response to the higher education needs of American Indians and generally serve geographically isolated populations that have no other means accessing education beyond the high school level. TCUs have become increasingly important to educational opportunity for native American students and are unique institutions that combine personal attention with cultural relevance to encourage American Indians—especially those living on reservations—to overcome the barriers they face to higher education. Montana Advisory Council on Indian Education
<http://opi.mt.gov/programs/indianed>

The Montana Advisory Council on Indian Education has been established by the Office of Public Instruction and the Board of Public Education to act in an advisory role to them in matters affecting the education of Indian students in Montana. Montana Advisory Council on Indian Education shall advocate for greater cooperation among tribal, state and federal organizations, institutions, groups and agencies for the express purpose of promoting high-quality education and equal educational opportunity for Montana's Indian students.

“We hope that by encouraging young American Indians to honor themselves, their minds, their bodies and their talents, that they will also honor their families, their tribal nations and their communities. American Indian youth can create their own path to success by working hard, staying in school, setting positive goals, and following their dreams.”

ACF is the federal agency funding state, territory, local, and tribal organizations to provide family assistance (TANF), child support, child care, Head Start, child welfare, and other programs relating to children and families. Actual services are provided by tribal, state, county, or city governments, and public and private local grantees. ACF assists service providers through funding, policy direction, and information services.

Federally recognized tribes may apply directly to HHS to operate a TANF block grant program. Like states, tribes may use their TANF funding in any manner reasonably calculated to accomplish the purposes of TANF. Tribal TANF funds are directly subtracted from the state TANF grant and tribal grants require no matching funds.

ACF is committed to supporting programs and activities that prevent the occurrence and recurrence of abuse of Native American children. We directly fund tribes and tribal organizations for child abuse and neglect prevention efforts through the ACF Children's Bureau. More information is available at cbexpress.acf.hhs.gov.

With the publication of Final Rules and Regulations for Tribal Child Support Enforcement in March 2004, Tribes and Tribal organizations can choose to operate a Title IV-D Tribal Child Support Enforcement Program.

SPRTC provides residential treatment services (mental health, behavioral health, and substance abuse) to both male and female Native American youth through culturally relevant programs. Our specialized programming provides youth with the opportunity to integrate treatment approaches into traditional lifestyles, encourages strong cultural identity, and increases their ability to be successful in society. Services are holistic (intellectual, emotional, physical & spiritual) and emphasize the need for spiritual growth and healing to prevent recidivism and/or relapse.

The Denver Indian Family Resource Center (DIFRC) provides culturally responsive family development services to strengthen American Indian families that are at risk of becoming or are currently involved in the child welfare system. Through parenting, mental health and other preventative services we prevent families from becoming involved with social services. Through intensive case management and family development services, we provide interventions that help families successfully navigate complex child welfare and judicial systems, in order to secure the return of their children from the foster care system. The Denver Indian Family Resource Center is dedicated to reducing the over-representation of American Indian children in the child welfare system and improving the quality of life for at-risk American Indian families.

It is the mission of the Two Spirit Society of Denver to strive to restore and revitalize the traditional role of Two Spirited persons. In Native American history, gay, lesbian, and/or transgender individuals are considered sacred and treated with the utmost respect. They are the historians, healers, and people of empowerment. They possessed the delicate balance of male and female, and are honored for being distinctive and having a different spiritual calling. For their tribes, they are the mediators between the spirit world and the natural world. They are known in their separate languages as “naadle” (nad le) Diné, “winkte” (wink-day) Lakota, and “bade” (bah-day) from the Hidatsa language.

In 1999 the Two Spirit Society of Denver formed to confront and combat homophobia, racism and oppression. Since, then our organization has refined our programs to address and educate issues on the effects of “historical trauma“, colonization and acculturation within the Native American communities. Our education targets the Native, non-Native American communities and the LGBT community at large.

ACF is the federal agency funding state, territory, local, and tribal organizations to provide family assistance (TANF), child support, child care, Head Start, child welfare, and other programs relating to children and families. Actual services are provided by tribal, state, county, or city governments, and public and private local grantees. ACF assists service providers through funding, policy direction, and information services.

Federally recognized tribes may apply directly to HHS to operate a TANF block grant program. Like states, tribes may use their TANF funding in any manner reasonably calculated to accomplish the purposes of TANF. Tribal TANF funds are directly subtracted from the state TANF grant and tribal grants require no matching funds.

ACF is committed to supporting programs and activities that prevent the occurrence and recurrence of abuse of Native American children. We directly fund tribes and tribal organizations for child abuse and neglect prevention efforts through the ACF Children's Bureau. More information is available at cbexpress.acf.hhs.gov.

With the publication of Final Rules and Regulations for Tribal Child Support Enforcement in March 2004, Tribes and Tribal organizations can choose to operate a Title IV-D Tribal Child Support Enforcement Program.

DHA owns and operates 3,800 conventional public housing units that are subsidized by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, nearly 700 subsidized multi-family units, and about 200 other locally-funded housing units. DHA also administers the federal Housing Choice Voucher program, which used to be known as "Section 8". The Housing Choice Voucher program makes it possible for residents with low incomes to live in rental housing anywhere in the city. DHA acts as an agent for HUD in this program, making subsidy payments to the private landlords of Housing Choice Voucher holders. DHA, on behalf of HUD, administers up to 5,625 Housing Choice Vouchers. Lottery system.

The Native American Business Enterprise Center is operated through a cooperative agreement with the U.S. Department of Commerce, Minority Business Development Agency. NABEC provides professional business consulting services and technical assistance to Native Americans to manage, grow and expand their businesses. Assistance extends to both tribes and individuals living both on and off the reservation. Assistance is available for all stages of business from start-up through expansion and includes services such as market research, marketing assistance, financial analysis, loan packaging preparation, procurement assistance, minority certification assistance, and business plan development.

NativeEDGE is a Native American Indian Business Development Web portal. The web portal works in conjunction with the National Center for American Indian Enterprise Development (NCAIED). The NativeEDGE web portal works to facilitate a sustainable economic development within American Indian and Alaska Native communities. NativeEDGE includes a telephone call center to be established, a publications clearinghouse, a host of resource links, and procurement technical assistance with the National Center for American Indian Enterprise Development. The web site links NCAIED, federal agencies, educational institutions, organizations, and other business and informational resources through a single web portal. The initiative is to provide a means for Native American Indian entrepreneurs, tribes, Native Americans, lending institutions, and private businesses a way to collaborate and promote economic growth.
